And the winners are . . .

Mike and Matt Bonner of Jamestown were the winners of the giant Christmas stocking, which is given away annually at Jamestown Hardware.

Community chorus starts rehearsing for spring sing

Rehearsals for the spring concerts of the Jamestown Community Chorus will begin on Monday, Jan 16, at 7 p.m., at Central Baptist Church on Narragansett Avenue.

The community chorus is a mixed choral group open to all who enjoy singing and who agree with the promotion of community spirit in all activities. There are no auditions. There is a modest fee for membership and nominal cost for music. Prior choral experience is not required.

In the early days on Conanicut Island, the village of Jamestown was isolated and so the residents depended on each other for support in all aspects of daily living. This created a strong sense of community that still exists today. Musical Director B. J. Whitehouse will tell you that is why the word "community" comes before the word "chorus" in the name of this hometown chorus.

The chorus board and members encourage new singers to join them in the upcoming Monday evening rehearsals. The spring concerts will be held on Saturday, May 13, and Sunday, May 14.

NKHS parent-teacher group meets Jan. 12

The North Kingstown High School Parent Teacher Student Organization will hold its next meeting on Thursday, Jan. 12, at 7 p.m. in the high school's Media Center.

The chairman of the school's Health and Physical Education Department will be present to discuss the program's curriculum.

Parents, students and teachers are welcome to attend with any questions or concerns they may have.

Principal Gerald Foley will also give his Principal's Report to keep attendees up to date on what is going on at the school.

Teens invited to learn about the heavens above

As part of its teen program series, the Jamestown library will present a program featuring University of Rhode Island astronomy expert Dr. Elizabeth P. Bozyan on Thursday, Jan. 12, at 7 p.m.

Bozyan will conduct an illustrated talk on the earth's galaxy and other galaxies.

Her most recent research has been on the Hubble Space Telescope project to define an inertial reference frame. She has been teaching at University of Rhode Island for the past 13 years and also teaches at Brown University and Rhode Island School of Design.

Bozyan earned her undergraduate degree in physics from Vassar College, a master's in astronomy from Wesleyan University, and a doctorate in astronomy from the University of Texas.

This free program is open to the public.
