

Peace topic of art symposium

Hera Gallery in Wakefield will present a "Symposium for Waging Peace," on Tuesday, Oct. 24, from 6 to 8 p.m.

The symposium coincides with the gallery's current exhibition, Waging Peace, and will explore the role of artists and the arts in general, in this politically charged time. The panel is made up of moderator Anne Rocheleau, founder and creative director of Spaces for Peace; Paul Broches, president of Architects, Designers, Planners for Social Responsibility/ NY and a partner at Mitchell-Giurgola Architects in New York City; Pamela Steager, an educator who received her masters of arts degree from the United Nations University of Peace in Costa Rica; Susan Masket, an art educator, environmental activist, and one of the artists in Waging Peace; and Molly Little, an undergraduate student at Brown University and peace activist.

This program is presented with partial support from the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts, Hera Educational Foundation, and the Friends of Hera. Admission is free and open to the public. Parking is available.

Potter League annual meeting Oct. 23

The Potter League for Animals will hold its annual meeting, "Building a Legacy of Trust," on Monday, Oct. 23, at 6 p.m. at the Atlantic Beach Club on Purgatory Road in Middletown.

The meeting will include a brief business session, an update on the year's activities and a presentation by guest speaker Vint Virga, DVM, a board certified veterinary behaviorist on "Anxiety in Animals."

There will be refreshments and a cash bar. The public is invited to attend. RSVP to Susan Ryan at 846-8276.

Learn about wind power

Aquidneck Island Planning Commission will host a seminar on the pros and cons of wind power on Thursday, Oct. 26, at the Atlantic Beach Club.

The meeting will run from 5 to 8 p.m., and there will be refreshments and a cash bar.

Presentations will be made on wind-powered energy by the Renewable Energy Research Laboratory at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and People's Power and Light of Rhode Island.

Everyone is invited to this informative session.

Illustration exhibit at Audubon center

The Audubon Society of Rhode Island and the Guild of Natural Science Illustrators will jointly present "From Observation to Illustration," beginning Sunday, Oct. 29, at the Audubon Society Environmental Education Center in Bristol.

The exhibition features work by guild-member artists from throughout New England who render beautiful and scientifically accurate illustrations of the natural world. The exhibit will run through Jan. 26, 2007.

The opening reception for "From Observation to Illustration" will be held on Sunday, Oct. 29, from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and feature a Technique Showcase, from 2 to 3 p.m. by artists who will demonstrate watercolor, carbon dust, and etching techniques. The regular admission fee will be waived for the opening reception.

The exhibition is free with the price of admission to the Environmental Education Center, which is $6 for adults, $4 for children. Kids under 4 get in free, as do ASRI members. For more information, call 245-7500 or visit www.asri.org. The Audubon Society is located at 1401 Hope St. in Bristol.
