Watson Farm tour on Sunday

Enjoy the first day of autumn with a special guided tour of the scenic Watson Farm.

On Sunday, Sept. 23, Don and Heather Minto, farm managers for 27 years, will lead the walk and share their research, experiences and stories as they take participants on a two-mile scenic hike through the extensive seaside agrarian landscape. The tour will begin promptly at 2 p.m. in the Watson Farm barnyard. The pastoral setting of this farm, on the west passage of Narragansett Bay, provides a rare opportunity for the interpretation of the agricultural history of the region.

This tour will focus on the land, people and natural resources of Narragansett Bay, as well as the continuum of agriculture through the past, present and future. The evolution of the Watson Farm itself will be placed in the larger context of Jamestown and Rhode Island history. Featured also in this walk will be information about ongoing efforts to promote heritage breeds of livestock. Watson Farm is working to preserve the Red Devon breed of cattle selected specifically for grass-based agriculture.

The tour is $8, or $3 for Historic New England members. For more information, visit online at www.HistoricNewEngland.org.

Miller photos on display at library

A select collection of Jamestown visual artist Don Miller's photography is on display at the library on North Main Road until the middle of October.

Miller's diverse career began in the U.S. Navy in the Western Pacific in 1971, and has since taken him from the North American continent to the Caribbean and parts of Europe. He owned a New York metro-area studio that employed a support group of ten people, who assisted him in fulfilling a wide range of assignments for national advertisers, as well as world-renowned magazines and artistic publications.

The exhibition at the library is a reflection of years dedicated to breathing life into images alive with emotion, passion and energy. Miller's brilliant displays of color, unusual perceptions of shape, and powerful renderings of life afford a view of the greatest show on earth through the exclusive window of his talented eye.
