Dr. Joshua Hatch of the Jamestown Animal Clinic says to hide your loose wires and protect your pets and homes.

"Some pets, often cats and rabbits, find electrical cords and cables as ready chew toys and can be at risk of electrical shock, risk house fires from frayed cords, and cause unnecessary expenses to replace damaged items.

"The first thing to do is to minimize access by bunching cords together, gathering up excess lengths, and using electrical tape, cable covers, or even PVC piping to keep the wires out of sight of your pet. Also consider coating the cords with something like bitter apple spray, vinegar, or hot pepper sauce to strongly discourage your pet from chewing at those wires.

"There are commercial available plastic wire covers that are infused with a citrus scent to help discourage chewing at the wires. Also, consider using wireless technology to reduce the number of available wires that your pet has access to.

"If you suspect your pet was electrocuted from a chewed wire seek immediate veterinary care as early treatment is essential in electrocution cases."

Replies to the Feb. 14 poser were sent in by:

Helen Zachadnyk from Cumberland who called in the answer and Barbara-Ann MacIntosh who e-mailed, "Hey there, you with the stars in your eyes, Love never made a fool of you, you used to be too wise, Hey there, you on that high flying cloud, Though she won't throw a crumb to you, you think some day she'll come to you etc."

Mary S. Wright e-mailed to say the song is from "Pajama Game" and was sung in the original Broadway show by John Rait and Janice Paige. She said the movie starred John Rait and Doris Day.

Thanks, ladies!

Tribute to those who have served in the Army

All Rhode Islanders who have served or are serving in the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or RI Army National Guard from WW II to the War on Terror will be honored at a tribute to be held Sunday, April 6, at Rhodes on the Pawtuxet.

The tribute is open to all Rhode Islanders: Army personnel, their family members, as well as those non-military who wish to pay tribute.

The tribute will begin at 12:30 p.m., with a reception, cash bar, and patriotic music by the 94th Army Band. Luncheon will be served at 1:30 p.m., with entertainment by the U.S. Army Strolling Strings followed by opening ceremonies with a parade of the RI Militia and a memorial to those who have made the supreme sacrifice in the line of duty.

Lieutenant General Jack C. Stultz, Chief of the U.S. Army Reserve will be the guest of honor and retired Lieutenant General Roger Thompson, national vice president of the Association of the U.S. Army, will be the honored guest. Major General Robert Bray, Rhode Island Adjutant General, will bring greetings from the Rhode Island Army Guard.

Reservations must be made by March 26.
