as a team due to these common bonds.”

Tetreault is from Warwick and went to URI, where he received both his bachelor's and master's degrees in physical education with an adapted PE emphasis. He ran cross country and track for the Rhody Rams.

Tetreault has three children including Amber, a special education teacher in Chariho; Ross, a sophomore in mechanical engineering at UMass-Amherst; and Chelsea, a freshman at the University of Vermont. He lives in North Kingstown with his wife Janice, a former NKHS cross country coach.

Jacques Faulise is returning to North Kingstown as the girls' tennis coach after moving to St. Louis for three years, then returning to coach the boys' team last spring.

Prior to his move, Faulise coached the boys' and girls' tennis teams for two years. Now that he is back in Rhode Island, Faulise is looking forward to picking up where he left off. Faulise loves the North facilities and speaks highly of his athletes and the athletic director, Keith Kenyon.

He attended Providence College and later was the tennis coach there where he racked up 160 Division I wins. He spent 18 winters working at the Tennis Hall of Fame in Newport and was an instructor at the Point Judith Country Club for 24 summers.

A toe-tapping production coming to NK theatre

With the first several days of school behind us, most students at North Kingstown High School have gotten past the denial stage, “Summer's not over!” They are slowly getting used to the idea of being back at school. But for those students involved in the NorTheatre's summer production of the musical “42nd Street,” being at the high school is not so foreign. Thanks to the show, there are even some freshmen who already feel at home at school.

Incoming ninth graders were welcome to audition for the show back in June, and those who did were able to get to know the school and make some new friends, all before their first day of classes.

This summer, the cast and crew of 42nd Street have been acting, tap-dancing, singing and building in preparation for the show. All aspects of 42nd Street are larger than life, from the huge tap-numbers to the dazzling costumes to the four part harmonies and the colossal set.

Surprisingly, the majority of the cast had never tap-danced before this summer. There are three Jamestowners in the production: junior Rachael Perry, freshman Jack Clarke, and myself. You can see the show Sept. 12 and 13 at 7 p.m., and Sept. 14 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 in advance, and $10 at the door. Look for more theatre and music information in next week's edition of the Press.

Train to be a hospice volunteer

A six-week Hospice Volunteer Training Program will be offered by Visiting Nurse Services of Newport and Bristol Counties at its Portsmouth office.

Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thursdays, beginning Oct. 9 and running through Nov. 13. The deadline for registration is Thursday, Oct. 2.

Hospice at Visiting Nurse Services of Newport and Bristol Counties offers comprehensive end-of-life care to people with terminal illnesses who live in the East Bay, on Aquidneck Island, and in Jamestown, Tiverton and Little Compton. Hospice volunteers provide companionship, comfort, and respite for caregivers and will do errands or prepare meals. Hospice volunteers also help with special events, fund-raising programs, and in the office.

Registration and interviews are required to participate in the program. No healthcare experience is necessary. For more information or to schedule an interview, call Jane Bresko, Hospice Volunteer Coordinator, at 682-2100, ext. 616.

Where in the World is the Jamestown Press?

Emily van Gelder, left, and Mei-ella Vickers took the Press to Bryant Park in New York City while they were awaiting the start of a Miley Cyrus concert.
