MURPHY'S LAW

In the "war on mailboxes", the plows operating on state highways seem to be considerably ahead of those on town roads.

Could a couple of large wind turbines, placed on Gould and Dutch islands (both part of our municipality), meet a good measure of our Town's power needs?

Should any government regulated entity be able to merge itself into a size which is deemed "too large to fail"? Wouldn't our system be better off without private entities that demand near-total freedom when times are good, and seek government assistance when times are tough?

In drug crime prosecutions, a perpetrator risks loss of cars, boats, houses, and whatever property was used to carry out the criminal enterprise, or purchased with its proceeds. Fairness would seem to demand that the same risk be imposed upon those convicted of financial crimes.
