JEF grant money available for programs

The Jamestown Education Foundation encourages anyone interested in running an educational or cultural program that benefits Jamestown students to apply for a grant from the organization.

Previous grant recipients have included summer art camps, after-school cooking classes and a youth golf program. JEF is especially seeking instructors in computer software programs and website design.

No previous teaching experience is necessary, but an interest in working with students is required. Specific criteria are available with the application. Visit www.JamestownEducationFoundation.org for an application.
