

The New Look of Flu

Flu season is here and we want to help keep you safe. If you call us because of flu-like symptoms, you will see us arrive in full bio-protective gear. This is a new state requirement for EMS providers intended to minimize any possible virus transmission from previous patients, the hospital, or ourselves to you and your family.

It may not be the latest in fashion, but we are glad to do anything to help keep you protected.

With our best wishes for your good health,

OBITUARY

Dwight S. Smith, 60

Dwight S. Smith, 60, of Intrepid Lane in Jamestown, died at home last Friday, Nov. 20, after a determined and dignified battle with cancer. He was the husband of Judith (Hortman) Smith.

Born in Montclair, N.J. on May 30, 1949, Dwight was the son of Audrey (Hawthorne) Smith of Soamesville, Maine, and the late Stoddart Smith. In addition to his wife and mother, Dwight leaves his daughters, Jana Magarian, and her husband, Christopher, of Jamestown and Lauren Melucci and her husband, David, of Warwick. "Granddad" will be greatly missed by his beloved grandchildren, Callum, Audrey and Katherine Magarian, and Stella and Zoe Melucci.

Dwight is also survived by his two brothers, Phillip Smith and Mark Smith, both of whom reside in Maine, and his father and mother-in-law, William and Barbara Hortman, of South Carolina.

Dwight was raised in Delaware and received his Bachelor of Arts at the University of Maine, and subsequently, his Master's degree from Rhode Island College.

Dwight, an art educator in the Portsmouth School Department for 34 years, dynamically mentored the creative lives of school children of all ages. Having taught at Portsmouth Middle School and

Portsmouth Elementary Schools, Dwight finished an exemplary teaching career at Portsmouth High School as chairperson of the Fine Arts Department.

In his retirement, Dwight continued to have a substantial impact on the art community. He was the cartoonist for the Jamestown Press, an active member of the Conanicut Island Art Association and a frequent exhibitor at galleries and in the area. Most recently, Dwight launched a new career as the lead designer for Hypnartic Artwork, a company that produces kinetic garden sculpture. His commitment to the arts included a long tenure in the Boys and Men's Choir of Emmanuel Church and an ongoing interest in the beauty of his natural surroundings.

In addition to an enthusiasm for travel, Dwight was an avid tennis player and golfer.

A memorial service to celebrate Dwight's life will be held today, Wednesday, Nov. 25, in the Memorial Funeral Home at 375 Broadway in Newport. Calling hours will be held in the funeral home from 2 to 5 p.m. A service will follow immediately thereafter.

Please omit flowers. Information about donations in Dwight's honor and directions can be found at www.memorialfuneralhome.com.
